Vigilance Means Safety

With the shooting season for birds now in full swing and the time for hunting big game to follow a little later, it is an appropriate time to remind all who handle rifles, shot guns and revolvers that sudden tragedy lurks close by for some victims of carelessness.

Now is the time to remember that all too frequently it is the "unloaded gun" that unwittingly snuffs out a life or is responsible for irreparable injury to a child, a relative or a companion, or that he who is careless with firearms may cause death or injury to himself without a moment's warning.

How It May Happen

There are those who will go out lightly for a day of enjoyment in the crisp autumn air and who will return to their homes full of grief and remorse over some accident for which a moment's thoughtlessness was the responsible and the memory of which will never be entirely obliterated.

There is the sportsman of excitable temperament who is too keen to get in his shot and will not wait before pulling the trigger until he is quite sure of the nature of the object at which he points his weapon. He sees something move and that is sufficient. He raises his gun to his shoulder and lets fly in the general direction of the movement. His quarry may be a bird, it may be a dog or a cow or it may slip "curtains" for a child or a hunting friend.

Then there are those hunters who will surround a comparatively small grouse laden with ducks and who pull the trigger hastily in their anxiety to get a bird without making sure that their companions are not in line to receive all or a portion of the discharged pellets. Such accidents are too common around sloughs skirted with bush which may render visibility imperfect.

There are also those who, despite the cautions frequently uttered by those well versed in rules of hunting, will carry their loaded guns at a dangerous angle, risking the lives of their companions; those who will drag guns through fences without regard to the direction of the muzzle and the risk of snagging the trigger; those who will place loaded guns in the house inviting death for some innocent child or curious adult and those who, despite the law to the contrary, will persist in firing guns from a moving automobile, wagon or buggy.

All of these and others who violate the hunter's common rules of safety are a constant menace during the hunting season. None of them can be charged with murder, yet the result of their actions may be the same as those of the man who sets out to kill deliberately his kind, but he cannot be accused because lack of ordinary precautions were not taken or because the common sense rules of safety were not observed.

Rules of Safety

"Safe carrying of guns must become a definite habit," recently said C. K. Howard, manager of the Fish and Game Department of the Canadian National Railways, in an interview outlining a few suggestions of the right observance of which would constitute an insurance policy against regrettable accidents.

"The golden rule is that the muzzle of a carried gun must never sweep the horizon," he continued. "If an accident discharge takes place it should send the shot into the ground before the feet of the person carrying the gun, or into the air. The muzzle of a gun should never be allowed to point towards the person carrying it nor toward any other person."

"Guns being taken into boats or vehicles, or over fences and other obstructions, should precede the person carrying them. Cartridges should be removed on entering camp or a house. Loaded guns should never be aimed at anything unless the person intends to pull the trigger. No loaded gun should be placed where it may be knocked down by a dog or a child, nor can there be any excuse for a loaded gun standing in a way that may be handled by a person who does not know that the weapon is loaded."

"Perhaps the most frequent cause of shooting accidents is the dangerous habit of some hunters who shoot at 'something' moving in the bushes without first making certain that the moving object is the game they seek rather than a hunting companion."

As Mr. Howard properly observed, "Few accidents happen to people who are careful of their guns. The precepts of safety are simple. If they are generally observed many lives can be saved each hunting season. The hunter must never forget that the man who 'didn't know' it was loaded is always with us."

Mr. Howard struck at the root of the matter when he said that few accidents happen to people who are careful with their guns. It is true there may be an occasional accident which could not be foreseen or prevented, as for instance, when the hunter with his eye on his quarry type over some minor obstacle at his feet, but such accidents are rare and nearly all the tragedies that occur in the hunting field can be attributed to carelessness and sometimes to criminal negligence.

Accidents which in this latter category can be avoided every year, but only by rigid observance of the few simple rules laid down by Mr. Howard in his timely interview. Sportsmen should always be on the alert to prevent such accidents and remember that eternal vigilance is the sole price of safety where guns and ammunition are concerned.

Voting In The Bahamas

Ballot System May Replace Oral Method Now In Use

Voters line up alphabetically at the polls to elect their candidate to office in the Bahamas legislature by the antiquated viva voce (oral) method of voting now, but a plan to change that is afoot.

Voters in the Bahamas mark no ballot. On election day, they go to the polls and are asked for whom they wish to vote. Their answers are entered on a printed form by a recorder.

When Harry Oakes, Canadian gold mine operator, defeated Miss Butler, negro grocer, for the Legislature in the Nassau election several months ago, the campaign was so well organized that Oakes' supporters were lined up alphabetically at the polls.

Women cannot vote in the Bahamas. Men over 21 who own real estate or household property to the value of $25 or more qualify as electors. Members of the legislative council or the representative assembly must own real or personal property to the value of $1,000.

First Gold Brick

Production Has Started At The Yellowknife Mine

Signaling the start of actual gold production in the Northwest Territories, the first gold brick, weighing 72½ pounds, was poured recently at the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company's Yellowknife mine. It was announced by Dr. Charles Cammell, deputy Minister of Mines and Resources for the Dominion.

Dr. Cammell, accompanied by G. Hannon, assistant chief geologist of the Federal Geological Survey department, arrived at Edmonton after four of northern mining centers in Canadian Airways' plane piloted by Con. Farrell.

Dr. Cammell officiated at the pouring of the brick.

Canada's War Memorial

Seventy-Foot Arch Is Now Being Erected In Ottawa

Behind a gray board fence across Wellington street from the Parliament Buildings' east block, in Ottawa, Canada's towering national war memorial is slowly being erected. 12 years after the design was originally selected.

Located in downtown Ottawa on the Plaza, the 70-foot memorial will face south to the Rideau Canal and the famous driveway. Back drop for the huge memorial is the parliament buildings, the Ottawa River and the distant Gatineau Hills.

The structure when finished will be a granite arch topped by bronze figures of victory and liberty with a military group passing through the arch at the base.

Will Your Lantern Stand This Test?

A hurricane, as officially defined by the United States Weather Bureau, is a wind "exceeding 75 miles an hour."

Tests just completed by Aircraft Engineers on a Coleman Gasoline Lantern placed in a wind tunnel and subjected to a gust of 100 miles an hour could not blow out the light.

The secret of the Coleman lantern's ability to withstand these high wind velocities is the design of the heat resisting glass globe which deflects moving air away from the lighted mantle, it being impossible for direct blasts of air to strike the point of illumination.

Constitute A Menace

One Driver In Every Ten Afflicted With Night Blindness

Ten per cent. of automobile drivers are afflicted with "night blindness," a sudden failure of vision with the approach of darkness. Dr. Ulysses Forger, Warren, R.I., said in a paper delivered to the Association of French-speaking Doctors of North America in convention at Ottawa.

"If such a people drive at night, without realizing their affliction, they are a menace both to themselves and others," he declared.

Thrills For Onlookers

Pilot Shows What Skill Can Do In An Emergency

Key nerve plus superlative ability and judgment combined to show military and newspaper observers at Camp Borden with an example of what can be done in a moment of emergency.

The pilot of an army co-operation plane of the Royal Canadian Air Force, taking part in maneuvers sent chills up the spines of those on the ground as he swept close to the ground at terrific speed and hooked a dispatch which had been strung on wires between posts in the middle of a cleared field.

Circling far above, the plane suddenly went into a steep dive, a steel hook dangling from below the landing gear. Coming almost to ground level, the plane flattened out, sped between the posts and missed the message by inches. Quickly the pilot put his machine into a steep climb and went back east of the field for another attempt.

With the wind screaming in the struts and the observers on the ground almost reconciled to a snafu, the plane dove once more and there were gasps as the machine appeared to be headed directly for the trees. At the pilot's last gasp, he skimmed the tree tops and went straight for the centre of the two posts. For a moment it seemed as though the book had again missed its objective, but as the plane rose once more it was seen to have successfully caught the paper.

Raymond Massey In New Role

A Canadian Representing Abraham Lincoln's, Brings Comments From New York Newspaper

Prospect of a Canadian actor playing the role of Abraham Lincoln on a New York stage was too much for the tabloid Daily News.

The News, worked up over the idea of a "British subject" playing such a great emancipator, above the level of international affairs to the tail end of its single editorial column and gave over the leader space to discuss the question: "A Canadian as Abraham Lincoln?"

Prompting the editorial was the much-brashed performance of Raymond Massey of Toronto in Robert E. Sherwood's "Abraham Lincoln in Illinois," scheduled to open early in the new theatre season.

Sherwood himself picked Massey for the part. The News thinks Massey as an actor is "fine" and "certainly does look like Lincoln." But it finds the nationality angle a big hurdle.

"We think he is going to stumble over something. In the subconscious minds of those who watch him, unable to deny the actor with his part, there is bound to be this question: 'Why in the world should a Canadian (and not say an American, Irishman, in view of his experience on the British stage) play the part of so thorough an American as Lincoln?'"

Motor Car Development

In Early Days Few People Foresee The Future Of The Industry

W. G. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Automobile association, asserted in a speech at the Canadian Good Roads association convention that few in the early days foresaw the future of the "horseless carriage." The British Association for the Advancement of Science concluded at its 1896 session that such vehicles could never be widely used because their operation would require too much skill and their drivers would not have the advantage of the intelligence of the horse in sharing his path.

R. H. Hutcheon, of Ontario highway department, said the experience in Ontario has been that when a loose gravel or stone road had to carry traffic in excess of 200 vehicles per day the maintenance charges per mile per year were excessive and it was practically impossible to keep the surface in a standard serviceable condition. Advantages of transforming the road to a more permanent type of dustless surface were fairly obvious.

Railways in India

Deal in Remarkable Way With Rush Of Pilgrim Traffic

Richard Hamilton, some years ago was able to beat his way about India so freely that in writing of his experiences he gave the impression that the railway system was rather loosely run.

Automobiles are not so plentiful in that country and the trains get the bulk of the travelling business when crowds want to converge upon any point.

The Kumbh mela attracts devout Hindu pilgrims from all over the country as it is considered a most auspicious moment for a bath in the holy Ganges. It falls once in 12 years.

Some remarkable facts and figures have been issued illustrating the achievement of the East Indian Railway in dealing with the phenomenal rush of pilgrim traffic to the Kumbh mela at Hardwar, recently concluded. The highest figures on any one day for inward and outward traffic were:

Inward—44 Special trains, 7 Regular trains. Total number of passengers 68,050.

Outward—41 Special trains, 7 Regular trains—80,000 passengers approximately.

On an average each special train provided accommodation for 1,500 passengers.

During the mela period from March 12 to April 13 a total of 347 special trains were run to Hardwar and no fewer than 543,151 passengers detained at that station.

She was adopted and raised by a foster mother who died when she was 21. Three years ago Miss Pull was playing an organ adaptation of "Auld Wife's Tale," when she noticed the composer's name was Edwin Pull.

The music was published in Toronto so Miss Pull wrote Police Chief Draper who got in touch with Pull.

"Father and I have written each other hundreds of pages of letters," she said, "now he is planning to visit England and may arrive next month. He has been a church organist in Toronto."

He has been remarried in Canada and has two sons.

Kay Joyce, trim in polo shirt, fawn-colored breeches, riding boots and red nails of an equal lustre, leaned out.

"Jack!" she called. "Don't splash around like that. How in the world you ever carry mother and me ashore? It was so slippery, didn't you ally?"

It was Bruce Kenning, however, who finally carried Kay and her mother ashore. Hammond, all of a sudden, realized that he was a sodden mess. Then, with the landing of the party, everything became confused; gold seekers crowded about, placer miners waded out to catch the rope which Timmy Moon had tossed to them, that they might knot it to a pontoon and anchor the ship. Now Hammond was back in his own cabin, talking excitedly as he changed his clothes.

"Kay's crazy about the cottage," he volunteered.

McKenzie Joe, squatted on the doorstep, turned his head and said, "I figured she was to be, for awhile."

"What do you mean awhile?"

"They're city people," said McKenzie Joe quietly.

Hammond laughed, tightened his belt, stood immobile a moment, then claved about in his half-dark room for a necktie.

"Don't you worry about that. Kay can take it. So can her mother. They like the outdoors."

McKenzie made no direct reply. He only eyed his partner.

"Kind of dressing up, aren't you?"

"Well," said Jack with a grin. "You know—their first night here. We're all going to the Slumgation to eat. Come along?"

"Nope," Joe said it half-bravely. "Little abrupt, aren't you, Joe?" he said at last.

"Not particularly."

A queer feeling of resentment shot through Hammond.

Hammond watched him stalk away; it was not his imagination, he told himself, which made him feel that Joe was different. Silent, almost morose at times; working quietly and without response while Hammond planned enthusiastically for the future, when Kay would be there and Sapphire Lake a city.

"Joe men be getting old," he said at last, and dropping down the step, hurried through the cross-cross of cables and tents toward the trail which led to the cottage.

Kay turned from a window and strode toward him with a swinging step which matched her outdoor clothing.

"You old dear!" she exclaimed. "I thought I'd better hurry back before Hammond explained honestly, 'Just to be sure you were really here.'"

"If your ears rang like mine, you'd be here," broke in Mrs. Joyce. "Biting cooped up in that airplane for I don't know how many hours!" She sat cross-legged on one of the two bunk-like beds, poking a cigarette into a long, green holder. Kay lit it.

"Can you imagine," she asked, as she came close to Jack, and with a maternal manner, straightened his collar, her close-fitting grey imprisoned her full breasts; they touched Hammond's arm, yielding softly to pressure, as they had paused all the way here from Vancouver.

Hammond barely heard her; his blood was tingling in his veins.

"Good thing we didn't have to turn back when we got here," he said. "A fellow's got to think of his responsibilities."

"How many stops did you make getting here?" Jack asked.

"Only a couple," Jack volunteered. "Once at Stewart lake for gas, and for Timmy to study his maps. Then again at Fourcous."

"That's what happens when a girl really wants to see a man," she observed calmly. Hammond laughed and could think of nothing to say. Kay crossed her room and dropped into a chair.

"Now that it's over, I'm tired," she said. "Couldn't we have dinner served up here?"

Hammond shook his head.

"Nothing like that. It's a matter of getting it when the cook's willing. I'll have things organized for you in a day or two—I've got a line on a woman who can come here and do the work for you."

"Wonderful," said Mrs. Joyce, with her usual lack of expression.

And in a moment, she announced, "Timmy," "we'll eat at the Quick and Dine and like it."

"When?" asked Mrs. Joyce.

"The idea's worth keeping to ourselves."

"We've got our theory, ain't we, that the big discovery's yet to be found? This stuff that's been turned up ain't nothing but chicken feed. We've got the richest placer claims along the new bed of Lion creek and well be lucky if they bring us fifty thousand dollars."

McKenzie Joe rose and tossed the stick away.

"Not while I'm a partner in this aback," he said. Then, hesitantly, "I guess I'll go out."

"You want change your mind, and come with us?"

"Oh, not tonight. You've all got things to talk about."

"We're waiting for Bruce Kenning, Mother."

"As usual; we've waited for him for ten years."

"Yes—father always said he was the latest thing in mining men."

Hammond laughed, for that anyone at that. Jokes had been few for him in these long weeks of waiting.

Bruce Kenning was coming in the door. After that, the conversation became jumbled; so much to be said over again, calls for food from Timmy Moon, monosyllabic cut-in by Mrs. Joyce, questions to be re-answered about the trip. But at last they were down the hill and at the crude doorway of the Slumgation.

For a moment a queer feeling of trepidation shied through Jack Hammond. For the first time, he wondered what Kay would think of his crude surroundings which he would find on every side, the lack of comforts of civilization. But the answer came almost as soon as his mental queries.

Parish Hospital In France Closed For Lack Of Patients

One of Paris' most famed institutions is closing down—the Poth Foundation hospital, founded in part by Madame Jacques Balsan, formerly Countess Vanderbilt, although one of the most modern hospitals in France, is going out of business for lack of patients. Miss Balsan, one of the world's richest women, generously contributed to the Poth Foundation and took particular interest in its equipment and service up to date.

Unable to recruit Braille because they had lost their fingers, blind lepers of the Barbadoes sent a request for talking books to the National Institute and several books registered on phonograph records have been sent.

More and more women are taking up law, we are told. But those laying it down are still in the majority.

ELECTRICITY BENEFITS EVERYONE!

Whether you live in town or in the country you benefit through today's wide use of electricity.

The new processes and manufacturing methods which electricity has made possible are responsible for most of the articles used in your home, your business, and on your farm.

Your radio, whether battery or batteryless, is of use only because electricity makes broadcasting possible. Your weekly movie is a child of electricity too.

You can phone for a doctor, or a pound of tea, only because of electricity. That same electricity has made it possible for your local merchants to keep their merchandising methods up to the standard of city stores.

These are only a few of the many ways in which electricity benefits you, whether you live in an ALL-ELECTRIC HOME, or one that is still to be equipped with these time-saving and labor-saving devices.

THE GREATER THE USE OF ELECTRICITY,
THE GREATER THE JOY OF LIVING.

Newspapers are used for other things than reading or wrapping parcels. You all know that printing ink acts as a deterrent to moths, but do you set on that knowledge and wrap up your blankets and clothing in newspapers before putting them away for the summer? Newspapers laid on or a cocoon matting catch the dust and dirt, which can be gathered up and destroyed rather than add to the labor of scrubbing and polishing the floors. There are occasions when the windshield wiper of a car will not work. Wad a newspaper and rub the windshield with it. The rain will run straight off, instead of clinging to the glass. The same dry way of newspapers will give a brilliant polish to mirrors. If you wrap a newspaper around a jug of ice-water twisting the ends together to exclude the air you will find that the water remains cool all night, with scarcely any melting of the ice. Newspapers tied into knots will keep your fire going just as well as wood. And several sheets of newspaper wrapped around the body on a long cold journey will keep you quite comfortable and warm.

Town & District

Next Monday is Thanksgiving Day and a public holiday.

The many friends in the Queens-town district will be pleased to learn that Mrs. McCabe and Mrs. Durston are quite improved in health.

K. Roy McLean, Optometrist and Optician 209-210 Southern Building, Calgary, will be in Gleichen on Tuesday morning, October 11th, at Dr. Farquharson's office.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Stubbs and daughter Maudie, left Sunday for the east. Mrs. Stubbs will visit in Medicine Hat for a time while Mr. and Miss Stubbs go on to Ontario.

Messrs. R. S. Haskayne, F. Daw, J. C. Buckley and J. Boyd motored to the E P Ranch last Friday and spent sometime watching the sale of stock there.

Practically all sportsmen who could get away last Saturday went hunting ducks. Some very good bags are reported while others had poor luck. Bob Brown was the first town hunter to report getting a goose.

Some exchanges have debated the question whether it is wise for the weekly newspaper to publish the court cases or not. One paper has decided to publish names of offenders without exception. The police usually like this to be done by the newspaper and they believe it is a deterrent of crime. We have refrained from doing this for many years for several reasons. One is that we believe that the weekly newspaper in a small town holds a unique place. It is read and discussed and it goes away to sons and daughters who have been raised in town and have gone away. For this reason to publish the names of those who have gotten into trouble with the law is like kicking a fellow when he is down. It spreads the evil news in a way no other source could. Occasionally a person will come into this office and beg that we say nothing about an offender who has got into trouble with the law. After all a circle in the town will know the police news; we have confidence that our police are doing the best they can to track down offenders, and why should we add to the sorrow and humiliation that follows in the wake of wrongdoing.

No matter what you may have to say in praise of the radio as compared with the newspaper, there are a lot of things you can't do, says the editor of Ward County Independent. For instance, you can't put a radio broadcast in your pocket and read it at your leisure. You can't save a clipping from a radio broadcast. You can't stop listening to answer a knock at the front door without missing something. You can't get a line on market prices when you have but a few minutes to spare but the program that is being broadcast has another half hour to run. You can't find out what your own neighbors are doing for you can listen to the radio forever and you will never hear about the deaths, the accidents, the marriages and the births, the fires and the festivals in your own community. You can't mark something of interest and send it to a distant relative by mail. And no housewife in the world can use a radio broadcast for nice clean pantry shelf covers. It's a wonderful thing, this thing we know as radio. But it hasn't taken the place of the home-town paper. And it never will.

TAXES! TAXES!

The payment of taxes or yearly rent is always a quandary and we offer the following poem which enumerates plenty of "this and that" upon which we, the people, pay our pay.

Taxes on the living,
Taxes on the dead,
Taxes when you're working,
Taxes when in bed,
Taxes on your labor,
Taxes on your play,
Taxes on your income
And on your pay;
Taxes on your trousers,
Taxes on shoes and socks,
Taxes on your lady's
Lipstick, step-in, frocks;
Taxes on your savings,
Taxes on your notes,
Taxes on your business,
Taxes on your votes,
Taxes when you marry,
Taxes when you die,
Taxes when you're sober,
Taxes when you're high,
Taxes when you get leery,
Taxes when you go,
Taxes on your assets,
Taxes on what you owe,
Taxes on your doggie,
Horses, cows and goats,
Taxes on your houses,
Lots and cars and boats,
Taxes on your future,
Taxes on your past,
Taxes on your eating,
Taxes when you fast,
Taxes on your drinking,
Taxes when you smoke,
Taxes on your make-up,
Taxes till you're broke.
Tell me Mr. Taxer,
Will we have to stand
Taxes on our happy and wings
In the promised land?

GARBUTT BUSINESS COLLEGE Limited

TRADERS BUILDING, CALGARY, Corner 12 Ave. and First Street West.

The greatest enterprises of the world are today managed by young people. Success comes early in life.

The present generation is going ahead fast—and starting early. If you would keep in the race, you must not lose time.

Hundreds of young men and young women who are in congenial employment, earning good salaries, advancing toward bigger responsibilities, enjoying the advantages of worth while associations and greater earning power, owe their present comfortable circumstances to training at Garbutt Business College, Trad-ers Building, Calgary.

YOUR COUNTRY NEEDS YOU

Perhaps you shrink from these words: and who can blame you? They recall all too vividly the patriotic fervor of a nation in arms and the epilogue of horror and heart-break. But, although the call is more urgent for your help in a crisis, your country needs you just as surely in the cause of peace and progress. If you and your neighbors are prosperous, your country prospers. If you and your neighbors are well informed and progressive, the whole country reaps the benefit.

Greater progress, higher standards of living, better ways of life, are possible to an informed people. It is your privilege to be informed fully on all matters of importance through a free press. Make full use of this freedom, denied in so many other countries. Be informed. Keep a voice in your own government.
